Bridge Logistics Expands Sales, Client Service Capabilities with Addition of Four New Employees

CINCINNATI, OH [April 23, 2007] — Bridge Logistics, a multi-faceted third party logistics provider based in Cincinnati, Ohio, has added four new employees to its team of logistics professionals. Skip Hawk will serve in a sales capacity for both the brokerage and warehouse operations, Jon Kastron will serve as a logistics coordinator, Nick Klousiadis will serve as a logistics coordinator, and Brian Soloria will serve as an operations support specialist.

Hawk, with more than 30 years of sales expertise, will lead Bridge Logistics in the start up of its new Dry Warehouse operation, a value added service that provides a total logistics opportunity at one facility for Bridge Logistics' customers. Hawk has spent most of his professional career in the transportation industry with Merchants Cold Storage and VPA Cold Storage. An honored U.S. Navy veteran, Hawk continues to serve his community through his involvement in the McMicken Society and UCAT at the University of Cincinnati and is a past deacon at Mount Washington Presbyterian Church. He currently resides in Anderson Township.

Kastron brings four years of sales experience and a strong educational background in logistics. As a logistics coordinator, he will handle coordinating drivers, daily operations and new customer development. He is a member of the Transportation and Logistics Association and the American Marketing Association. Kastron hails from Mansfield, Ohio and earned a double major in logistics management and marketing from the Fisher College of Business from Ohio State University. He currently resides in Loveland.

Klousiadis will handle operations and sales as a logistics coordinator. His charge will be new customer development and coordinating drivers on current loads to satisfy customer needs. Before joining Bridge Logistics, he worked as an intern at Merrill Lynch serving a dual role in marketing and prospecting. Originally from Mansfield, OH, Klousiadis received a degree in economics from the University of Cincinnati and currently resides in Loveland.

As an operations support specialist, Soloria will lend general operations and sales support to logistics coordinators at Bridge. He previously worked as a financial representative for Fidelity Investments, receiving the "Customer First Award" during his tenure for outstanding customer service. He graduated from the University of Cincinnati with a degree in business administration and currently resides on the west side of Cincinnati.
